Trading Contracts for Difference ("CFD's"), including foreign exchange, contracts for differences, precious metals, cryptocurrencies or other over-the-counter products traded on margin or otherwise, carries a high level of risk and may not be suitable for all investors. The high degree of leverage associated with trading such contracts can result in substantial losses, as well as gains. Past performance is not indicative of future results, which can vary due to market volatility; it should not be interpreted as a forecast of future performance. Careful consideration should be exercised in determining whether such trading is suitable for any investor in light of its financial condition, level of experience and appetite for risk, and advice should be sought from an independent financial advisor in the event of any doubt. Unless otherwise stated, any pricing information given in this e-mail is indicative only, is subject to change and does not constitute an offer to deal at any price quoted.
